

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR ROOFING EXPERIENCE

By V & V Roofing

Roofing is a project that requires precision, expertise and patience—as well as a bit of rule following! Nobody likes reading the directions, but when it comes to putting a roof on a house or business, you should always stay within the guidelines to ensure quality performance and completion.

Here are tips on “what to do and what not to do” to make sure your experience goes smoothly:

Do: Your Homework

There are plenty of roofers in your area to choose from, but some may have a little more credibility than others.

Consider looking around locally or talking to neighbors about recent roofing projects. You want the best of the best working on your home or business.

Don't: Wait Until the Last Minute

If you see light coming through your roof, hear drips in the attic, or find shingles around your yard, it's way past time to call a professional.

To avoid serious problems, schedule routine checks for your roof, so roofers can catch things early on. Don't hold off on a repair, because the situation could quickly escalate into something much costlier.

Do: Know Your Roof's Specs

Quality roofs are installed to last, and they can withstand high wind speeds, large quantities of water and intense heat. Both metal and shingle roofs are made to stand against the elements.

Learn what your roof can handle, and ask a professional to help you improve weak points.

Don't: Do It All on Your Own

Roofing professionals are simply that: professionals.

If your facility is experiencing structural difficulties because of the roof, contact a roofer to investigate the problems and produce an estimate.

The last thing you want is to involuntarily make an easy fix into a huge remodeling project because of an operator error.

Do: Keep Up Communication

Roofers need your testimony in order to understand a situation fully. Everything you can tell the professionals about a roofing problem can help create a more positive outcome.

Be open and honest about your roofing concerns; they're here to assist!

Don't: Make Decisions Based on Pricing Alone

Your roof's health is not something you want to skimp money on.

Take into consideration the suggestions your roofer gives you even if it may mean more money up front. Your roof bears the brunt of everything nature has to throw at your building. Spending now will save you much more down the road.

To avoid serious problems, schedule routine checks for your roof, so roofers can catch things early on.

Do: Take Care of Your Roof

Your roofers can build and install a fantastic roof, and it is up to you to keep it looking great.

Remove limbs, maintain nearby shrubbery and inspect gutters and shingles.

However, if you do notice more serious problems, contact a professional for assistance.
